User Conferences Hosted in Charlotte and Las Vegas Provide Platform for Learning to New and Advanced Class Management System Users

CHARLOTTE, NC – October 5, 2010 - Jackrabbit Technologies presents User Conferences during the month of October for customers who would like the opportunity to gain more insight into the business and class management system's robust features and enhancements. The conferences, held on both the east and west coasts, provide educational tracts, discussion groups and one on one time with support team experts to give Jackrabbit's rapidly growing customer base with information that will help them to get more from their Jackrabbit system and leverage its features to make their operations more efficient and effective.

October 7-9, Jackrabbit's team will host users in its headquarters city of Charlotte, NC. More details are available about the East User Conference, however, registration is closed for that event. October 20-23, Jackrabbit hosts users in Las Vegas. More details are available about the West User Conference. Registration is still open for the West conference.

"The energy around the User Conferences is tremendous," comments Mark Mahoney, President and CoFounder of Jackrabbit Technologies. "Users are hungry for learning opportunities – especially when they know that the system can help them improve and grow their businesses."

Jackrabbit launched its annual user conference program in April of 2010 by hosting its first User Conference in Charlotte with more than 100 clients attending. The event was such a success that the next series of events was quickly planned to take place on both coasts so that more customers could easily reach the conference destinations.
